STATION 5: THE ENGLISH COMPLETED TARGET (1611)

=====

You are looking at the Book of Leviticus, Chapter 23, printed in the authorized King James Version (KJV).

This physical volume represents the final destination of the massive 1,000-year line of transmission documented on the panel above:

* FROM LATIN TO ENGLISH: John Wycliffe's 14th-century hand-copied English manuscripts laid the groundwork for public accessibility.

* FROM GREEK TO PRINT: William Tyndale's 16th-century printed editions provided the direct translation foundation, costing him his life at the stake.

DUAL-STATION EXPERIMENT:

Look at the text in this English Bible, then look across the room at the Hebrew Torah scroll on the Panel 4 table.

Though separated by thousands of miles, different centuries, and completely different alphabets, the meticulous laws of the ancient scribes and the fierce devotion of the English martyrs ensured that the text in front of you matches the ancient scroll perfectly—letter-for-letter and command-for-command.
